

NEW FROM HOT PRESS

How do we deal with an environmental crisis so dire that it threatens all life on Earth?

In Stories for Fire Dogs, Sally Andrew engages emotionally, philosophically and practically with global warming. Her creative essays are alive with fire dogs (guardians and watchdogs of the earth), singing dogs and sleeping dragons ...

Stories for Fire Dogs – Opening our hearts to the Earth

This book engages with the environmental crisis – global warming in particular. It contains personal stories, accessible fact sheets on the problems and solutions to climate change, and an Earthlife Africa Cape Town petition to the South African government.

According to Chinese Astrology, 2006-2007 was the Year of the Fire Dog. Dogs represent the guardians and watchdogs of the earth.

STORIES FOR FIRE DOGS

Opening our hearts to the Earth

Sally Andrew

– Reviews –

‘Sally Andrew has a way with words.

A way that touches the heart with poignancy but also with hope. Each of her stories for fire dogs is grounded in experience, given wings by imagination – energised by anger, blessed by love. In these pieces, you taste your individual fear and find your communal courage to run at the enemy and defend what is precious.’

Ally Ashwell, fire dog, Enviro Eds

‘Captivating reading for all who care about people and our planet: a fabulous book.’

Dr Jim Taylor, fire dog, Director of Environmental Education, Wildlife and Environment Society of South Africa

‘I loved these stories. Although they were about difficult issues, they made me feel peaceful; like it’s all going to be alright.’

Maya Aberman, fire dog, Earthlife Africa

‘Sally Andrew writes beautiful compelling stories, which I believe should reach as wide an audience as possible.’

Hettie Gets, fire dog, Manager Conservation Education Programme WWF-SA
